Wood is a natural product. Wood varies in color and grain pattern. The wood in your piece may expand and contract during seasonal changes due to the changes in humidity. Additionally, exposure to sunlight can change the color of wood. This is true for all solid wood products. Whittle Woodworks constructs pieces to minimize the effects of these changes but unfortunately cannot cover any of these natural processes under our warranty. Fluctuations in the wood's volume due to humidity is seasonal, cyclical, and in most cases goes unnoticed and will not effect the integrity of the piece.

Wood Care

Chemicals, cleaners, and abrasives can damage the wood and its finish. Please use cleaners as per manufacturer's recommendations.

Hot cups, pots, etc. can damage wood and its finish. Wet glasses can leave water marks. Protecting wood from sunlight will help maintain the color and character of the wood for years to come. Faded wood will not affect its integrity.

Wood stored in a humid outdoor environment will have a shorter lifespan . High levels of moisture can cause glue joints to fail, finish to peel, and warping in the wood. Moisture damage is not covered under our warranty
